MYSTERIOUS FIND

IN OLD CEMETERY

Human Skull Found on Top of Grave in Old Reformed Church Cemetery on East High Street. Origin a Mystery.

A human skull was found this morning lying on top of a grave in the old Reformed church graveyard on the south side of East High street, its source or the person to whom it belonged being entirely a matter of speculation.

The discovery of the gruesome object was first made last week by some children from the public schools who promptly told their playmates of their find. They in turn told others and as a result many of the boys and girls of Gettysburg have become excited over the ugly looking object.

This morning Constable Charles H. Wilson and a representative of The Times went to the cemetery and found the skull lying on top of the grave of Joseph Mathias who died in 1896. Investigation showed that neither this nor any other grave in the place had been disturbed, making the origin of the skull all the more mysterious. The fore part of the skull is missing but the rear is in good condition and it was taken to a local physician who at once pronounced it as having at one time belonged to a human body.

The places where the bones unite are very accurately defined and the entrance for the vertebrae is also present. Parents whose children saw the object lying on top of the grave say that the youngsters have been having bad dreams ever since. All are mystified as to the origin of the skull and the person or persons who put it in the cemetery. No other bones were seen.

The skull is now on exhibition in the window of Eckert's store.

CAPTAIN GILBERT BOUGHT

CHAMBERSBURG HOME

At auction on Saturday afternoon in front of the Franklin county court house S. J. Hafer, auctioneer, knocked down to Captain Calvin S. Gilbert, of this place, the Dr. W. F. Teeter real estate in Chambersburg adjoining that of the Captain's daughter, Mrs. L. F. Susserott, for $5390. It will be recalled that Harry Silvers at a previous sale got the property knocked down to him for $4800 and the widow made petition to court not to confirm the sale because Captain Gilbert had offered to pay $500 more. The court ordered a resale if Captain Gilbert would file a check for $500, which he did and he made good his offer by bidding the price obtained. Captain Gilbert was there personally for the sale.

BIG VAUDEVILLE ATTRACTION

John F. Walter has booked the Five Musical Lovelanders for a three day engagement at the Walter Theatre. Their first appearance will be tonight. The following from Hanover promises well for the attraction.

This act was booked for three days engagement at my theatre and was my greatest card since I have been in vaudeville. Instead of three days we had them a week while hundreds of patrons were turned away, not being able to get admission. This act is given by father, mother, daughter and two sons and is one of the leading musical acts in vaudeville today. The daughter is one of New York's leading violinists and is known as one of the prettiest ladies on the American stage to day. I consider this act a dream of the present day and you will be convinced if you see it. Hanover Vaudeville Theatre, Lam E. Miller, manager, Hanover, Pa.

A Whistler Story.
In "Under Five Reigns" Lady Dorothy Nevill, the author, tells this characteristic story of Whistler:

On one occasion when Whistler was asked to dinner by a somewhat punctilious host the party after waiting for an unconscionably long time eventually sat down to dinner. Soup and fish were served and still no Whistler appeared, and when at last he arrived the host was in anything but the best of tempers, as his countenance showed. Whistler, however, was in no wise disconcerted, for, cheerily grasping a somewhat flapping hand, he rattled out, "Don't apologize for having begun without me; I shan't be offended in the very least" after which, taking his seat, he became the life and soul of the party.

BURNS MORTGAGE

OF 14 YEARS

United Brethren Congregation Sings Doxology while Paper Representing Debt Burns. History of High Street Church.

An interesting, impressive and happy event took place at the close of the evening service in the Memorial United Brethren church on West High street Sunday evening when the mortgage representing an indebtedness of fourteen years' standing was burned in celebration of the debt being paid.

As the flames consumed the paper the congregation arose and while it burned sang twice the old doxology "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow." The match had been applied to the cancelled mortgage by Mr. C. G. Miller, president of the Board of Trustees and Mrs. G. W. Sherrick, president of the Ladies' Aid Aid Society.

Twenty years ago the United Brethren congregation purchased the old United Presbyterian church and began work in Gettysburg. Fourteen years ago the present sanctuary was built. Rev. J. R. Hutchison, now a retired minister living here, was the first pastor. Rev. A. N. Horn, now the pastor of the United Brethren church at Enola, Pa., was the pastor here when the church was built. Rev. W. J. Beamer, now a retired minister living at Guildens Station, then the Presiding Elder, assisted in the building enterprise.

A heavy indebtedness was necessarily incurred. But the church pressed forward growing slowly and reducing the debt a little from year to year. On Sabbath evening at the close of the service the pastor, Rev. G. W. Sherrick, announced that the last dollar of the indebtedness had been paid and the burning of the mortgage followed.

During the same period covered by the above a paragon for the parish composed by the two churches of Salem and Gettysburg was also built and enlarged on which there rests an indebtedness of only $250.00.

The annual revival services began in this church Sunday night. The pastor made a very earnest appeal to the church to co-operate. He said that at such a time every member should be in his place with enthusiastic loyalty supporting the cause.

BROKE THROUGH ICE

Clarence Fair of near Barlow while cutting wood on some ice last Saturday broke through and went into water about five feet deep. He was caught partly under the ice and the affair might have resulted seriously if J. William Maring who was there had not thrown a long rope to the unfortunate man and pulled him ashore. Mr. Fair had to walk a mile to get dry clothes. The rope used was one which the men had for throwing trees.

MANY CHANGES IN HOLIDAYS

Easter to Fall Late in April. This Year Thanksgiving Day may not be Last Thursday in November. Eclipses during the Year.

There will be marked changes during 1911 in the dates of most of the movable holidays and feasts, the church events, etc., which depend on the position of the moon at a given time. This will be because the dates for the full moon this year come the first half of each month, which is just contrary to 1910, the full moon dates falling on the last half of the month.

The year will contain 53 Sundays, the other days of the week being reported but 52 times during the cycle. January, April, July, October and December each contain five Sundays.

Easter in 1911 is late, April 16 being the date. This is due to the fact that the preceding full moon is on the 13th, which is the first full moon following March 21st.

To those who have made a study of the calendar for 1911 it has become apparent that there is some doubt as to the exact date for celebrating Thanksgiving. It has always been the popular notion that the last Thursday in November was the day that was invariably selected, but it seems that this rule may be changed this year.

The last Thursday in November is likewise the last day of the month, and the compilers of a number of almanacs, claiming that the last day of the month is too late for Thanksgiving Day have selected the next to the last Thursday, which falls on the 23d. They say that this date is near the time that the celebration is generally held each year.

However, others still stick to the hard and fast rule and fix the celebration for November 30. The more conservative almanac makers, however, realizing that there is some room for doubt, do not fix the time, but say that it will be held either on the last or next to the last Thursday, according as the president of the United States may direct.

There will be but two eclipses during the year, both being of the sun. A total eclipse will occur April 28, but will be only partially visible in the United States. Little of it will be seen in this part of the country. The second eclipse will be October 23, but no part of it will be visible here. Last year, in addition to having several fine eclipses, Halley's comet afforded interest in the way of heavenly exhibitions, but this year there is little promised in the way of spectacular performances.

Mars is the ruling planet for the year. Mars is a bright, fiery star, brilliant and terrible; by nature hot and dry and is the instigator of war and discord. Prognostications for 1911 are that the year will be more dry than humid. Heavy thunder gusts will prevail during the heated seasons and many serious fires will result. Snakes and grasshoppers will be unusually abundant but fish will be scarce.

The summer season will not be the most favorable for crops especially those which require a great deal of moisture. Frost may be expected late in the spring. Owing to the dry weather streams will reach a low ebb during the late summer season.

Millionaire to Appear Against Wife in Poisoning Case.

SLOW POISONING TRIAL ON TODAY

Mrs. Schenk Accused of Seeking Life of Husband.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 9.—Accused of attempting to murder her millionaire husband by slow poisoning and impelled in the crime by a mind "higher up," Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk was placed on trial here today. She has been in prison since her arrest, Nov. 20.

John O. Schenk, her husband, and a millionaire pork packer, will appear against her. He has fully recovered from the effects of the arsenic which nearly ended his life.

Other witnesses for the prosecution will be detectives, who, disguised as employees on the Schenk estate, sought to solve the mysterious illness of the millionaire and produced the evidence which led to the arrest of the woman.

Mrs. Schenk has the best legal talent in the state, engaged, it is said, by certain men much in her company during the time her husband was in Europe seeking to rid his system of the poison.

There may be other prominent figures brought into the case as the trial progresses. By most of those who are intimately informed concerning the case it is believed that there is a "mind higher up" which engineered the alleged poisoning scheme.

This will be a battle royal of brains and wits—a struggle on the part of the husband to show that his wife wished to rid herself of him because of her love for another man, as against the defense of the woman that it is a scheme to eliminate her from the Schenk family because of certain alleged differences of social caste.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound of imperfection, hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

NEARLY $9,000,000 DEPOSITS

Heavy Loans From Steel King Several Times Averted Disaster During Its Short Career.

New York, Jan. 9.—Interest in the Carnegie Trust company's failure is centered in the forthcoming report of the state bank examiner, O. W. Cheney, as to the exact status of the bank's resources.

That the institution's affairs are in a more or less tangled condition was made evident by Mr. Cheney's attitude.

"It is impossible," said Mr. Cheney, "to give even approximate figures on the situation. It will be at least four days before the experts now going over the books will be able to complete gathering the information which is now awaited by the depositors."

Andrew Carnegie refused to break his silence regarding the company's affairs. "It is plain," said he, "that I cannot discuss the matter."

Nearly $9,000,000 Deposits.

According to the latest statement given out, on Nov. 10, the trust company has total deposits of $8,896,700, of which the preferred deposits were $4,765,380.

The difference of $4,131,000 was subject to the legal reserve law. Hence the 15 per cent reserve that should have been in the vaults would have amounted to $699,000.

The company, which was organized some five years ago, has had such a precarious existence that it came to be known as "the stormy petrel" in the Wall street district.

The gentlemen who organized it used Mr. Carnegie's name without his consent, but in spite of this he came to its assistance thrice during critical moments, and his refusal to do so the fourth time was the final result of its downfall.

In the panic of 1907 the directors received from Mr. Carnegie $1,000,000 in United States Steel bonds through the influence of Charles M. Schwab. In the spring of 1910 he advanced another million dollars during the Columbus & Hocking Valley Coal and Iron flurry, and when the Carnegie Trust company took over the Van Norden Trust Mr. Carnegie advanced $2,000,000 in bonds, taking the Van Norden stock as collateral. This stock he still holds.

Argued All Night.

As a last desperate effort the directors of the bank pleaded with Mr. Carnegie to tide the institution over the present crisis. It is understood that they argued with the ironmaster all Friday night to induce him to save the company. He asked for more time to consider the situation, but before he could make up his mind the banking department stepped in.

It is hinted that if Charles M. Schwab, one of the directors, on his way home from Europe, had been here the temporary assistance needed would have been furnished.

NOTES TELL OF SUICIDE

City Thinks Man Drowned Himself in Underground Lake.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 9.—A note found beneath the Todd house, where workmen were repairing the foundations, which had been weakened by the recent cave-in, leads to the belief that a man committed suicide in the underground lake found in the heart of Staunton.

The note bore the signature of "G. S. Lewis," and said that of his own free will he was about to "commit the rash act of berrying" himself in the underground lake as the surest way of disposing of his "worthless life."

He requested that no one try to recover his body but that he be left to sleep in peace. On another note in the same handwriting was the following: "If anything happens notify H. H. Lewis, New Town, W. Va."

The lake is 130 feet deep, but an effort is being made to ascertain if Lewis' body is hidden within its depths.

Man Who Stole Red-Hot Stove Plamed For a Roller's Loss.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 9.—Police and detectives are baffled over the peculiarity of recent thefts from Woodson & Ready, contractors.

The loss of a concrete roller, seven shovels, two picks and a set of harness was reported to the police. The only circumstance with which the police can connect the theft occurred a few weeks ago, when a person of seemingly like conglomerate taste stole a red-hot stove.

It since has been a wonder and a mystery how the stove could have been carried off, but the police think that the same persons who was responsible for the theft of the stove is responsible for the Woodson & Ready robbery.

POLICE ACCUSE WIFE

Locked Up in Pittsburgh When Husband Was Found Poisoned.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 9.—Barred from all communication with each other and with the outside world, G. M. Strobaker is in the South Side hospital, slowly recovering from strychnine poisoning which was placed in his food, and Mrs. Strobaker is held at the police station.

The police refuse to prefer charges against the woman yet, but they will not release her, although her husband declares that she is innocent of any complicity in the attempt to kill him, and says that as soon as he is able to leave the hospital he will free her.

Sensational developments are certain to arise in this case, according to the police, whose attention was attracted when Strobaker collapsed while working as superintendent of a grain elevator.

Physicians who attended Strobaker identified as strychnine the white substance sprinkled over the bread and jam he had for his lunch, and when taken to the hospital he readily responded to treatment for strychnine. Marital relations of the pair furnish no clue for the poisoning, for so far as is known they never quarreled. Mrs. Strobaker's relations are taking steps to have her released.

GRAFTERS TO PAY UP

Payments in Pennsylvania Capitol Suits Due Tomorrow.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 9.—The concluding act of the restitution suits that grew out of the scandal resulting from the furnishing, equipping and decorating of the Pennsylvania capitol will be directed by Judge George Kunke, of the Dauphin county court, tomorrow afternoon.

Upward of $1,500,000 will be paid over. It is expected that $1,200,000 will be in cash and the balance made up with state warrants not yet honored.

The settlement will bring to a close all cases growing out of the capitol scandal, except the criminal prosecution of Architect Joseph M. Huston. His application for a new trial is under consideration by the superior court.

GIN PUTS CHILD IN DEATH SLEEP

Fell Into Stupor After Drinking Pint of Liquor.

Washington, Jan. 9.—After twelve hours of unceasing labor over the silent form of Eufalia Cothey, three years old, in the ward of the Casualty hospital, hope for her recovery was abandoned.

Her vitality almost gone from the effects of a pint of gin, and from being allowed to lie unconscious more than four hours without medical treatment, the little girl was taken to the hospital.

Her father and mother live at 618 T street. Lots of times had the father seen big strong men lie in stupors for hours and then come around with nothing more than a headache.

So he didn't quite understand that the gin the child found and drank would kill her unless the best emergency treatment was hurried.

Her parents thought she was "just jugged," and so they put her to bed. The neighbors learned that little Eufalia was unconscious and insisted she be sent to the hospital.

Noted Rupture Expert Coming to York

Well Known to Leading Physicians, Who Indorse His Method
W. B. SEELEY, of Philadelphia, the noted truss expert, will be in York and remain at the Hotel Penn., from Monday noon until Wednesday noon January 10th to 12th.
Mr. Seeley says the Spermatic Shield Truss, as now used and approved by the U. S. Government, will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate relief, but closes the opening in a short time on the average case, and costs far less than the numerous fraudulent schemes so often worked upon the unsuspecting sufferer.
It produces results without surgery or harmful injections.
The merit of this instrument was appreciated by the Czar of Russia, who purchased one for his own use.
Mr. Seeley has many old customers in this vicinity, whom he hopes to have call. He will also be glad to show interested parties his patented appliances, or he will demonstrate the reliability of their work without charge.
Ruptured persons should remember the date and take advantage of this unusual opportunity.
Personal references on request.

And HYOMEI is so pleasant to use; you'll like to use it; when you breathe it the effect on the inflamed catarrh infected and germ ridden membrane is soothing and healing.

In five minutes you get such wonderful relief that you will know that at last you have a cure for catarrh.

A HYOMEI outfit which consists of one bottle of HYOMEI, a hard rubber pocket inhaler, a medicine dropper and simple instructions for use, costs only $1.00, and extra bottles of HYOMEI, if afterwards needed, 50 cents.

INSIDE FORCE WRECKED MAINE

Bones and Coal Found in Mud in Which Hull Lies.

REPORTS BY THE EXPERTS

Explosion of Powder in One of the Air-Tight Compartments Is Their Explanation.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The war department is receiving reports from those engaged in raising the sunken battleship Maine from Havana harbor which tend to show that the disaster was due to an internal explosion.

In the mud and silt in which the hull lies buried have been found much coal and the bones of some of the crew of the ship, who met their deaths when the explosion came and the ship sank.

Engineers think the coal and the bodies of the men were blown from the battleship by an explosion in one of the air tight compartments in which was stored powder and other explosives. They do not think the coal could have been blown from the hull of the battleship by an outside explosion.

Spanish authorities contended that the sinking of the Maine was the result of an internal explosion. It was the popular belief in this country that some Spaniard had wrecked the Maine through the use of a mine or some high explosive because of this country's sympathy for Cuba. The wave of indignation that swept over the country precipitated the war with Spain.

With the present progress of the work the hull should be raised by April. There is some fear that the hull may break in two while being raised. Before this occurs, if it should happen, those in charge of the work will know the cause of the sinking of the Maine.

WE CAN FORTIFY CANAL

Ex-Senator Foraker Says There Is Nothing In Treaty to Prevent It.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Former United States Senator Joseph Benson Foraker, of Ohio, deals the opponents of the Panama canal fortification plan a hard blow in a letter he has written to President Taft.

Mr. Foraker discloses for the third time the fact that he, then a member of the United States senate, personally suggested to Secretary of State Hay the change in the first Hay-Pauncefote treaty which resulted in the adoption of the convention now in force. Among these changes was the omission of the provision against the fortification of the canal. Senator Foraker discussed the proposed treaty and the changes in detail with Secretary Hay, and he declares now that the purpose not only of Secretary Hay, but of a great majority of the senate, was to preserve to the United States an unquestioned right to fortify the canal.

"An explicit stipulation to this effect," says Senator Foraker, "was not insisted upon because silence on the subject itself left us free as we might see fit. It was because the British government thought such was the legal effect of silence that they insisted on the express prohibition of the first treaty."

While Secretary Hay's own words leave no doubt as to his purpose in negotiating the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in its final form, the testimony of ex-Senator Foraker is so specific that the administration has accepted it with pleasure.

NEW WAY TO END STRIKE

Scranton Packers Discontinue Delivery of Meat to Patrons.

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 9.—The meat packing houses of Scranton found an unusual but effective manner in which to settle the strike of their drivers, who are out for better wages and conditions.

The local packers have simply announced that they have discontinued the delivery of meat to their patrons and that hereafter no drivers will be needed. Butchers are compelled to drive to the packing houses for their own meat.

This has angered the retailers, who have made a slight advance in the price of meat and exasperated the local labor unions, who are looking for a way out of the difficulty.

QUITS HIS TURKISH POST

Ambassador Straus Resigns and Rockhill May Succeed Him.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Oscar Solomon Straus, of New York, former cabinet minister and for more than a year and a half the American ambassador to Turkey, has resigned his post at Constantinople.

It has been known for some time that Mr. Straus intended severing his connection with the diplomatic service, but it did not develop until now that he had actually resigned. Early in November he was granted leave of absence, and during the past two months has been in New York.

He did not submit a formal letter of resignation, as such action was not necessary. His leave of absence, which, according to law, was limited to sixty days, expired early in January. The post at Constantinople became vacant at that time.

William W. Rockhill, the present American ambassador to Russia, is likely to succeed him.

DRUNKEN MAN WRECKS THREE LOCOMOTIVES

Opens Throttle at Top Speed and Leaps.

Danville, Va., Jan. 9.—A wild engine started in motion in the Southern railroad yards here by a drunken man crashed into two other locomotives standing on the tracks, causing a wreck in which R. F. Rowlette, a conductor on the Richmond and Danville division, was seriously if not fatally injured.

Rowlette was asleep in the caboose attached to an engine waiting for the arrival of the time to make his run, when John J. Frederick, a young white man and stranger, boarded the locomotive and turned on the throttle at full speed.

After crossing the railway bridge over the Danville river, Frederick reversed the engine and then jumped. The caboose collided with another engine in the yards and wrecked it. The runaway engine then struck a third locomotive which was standing on a turntable. The three locomotives, all badly damaged, were found piled up together.

Rowlette, in an unconscious condition, was found beneath the wrecked caboose. Frederick was arrested shortly after the wreck and stated that he was drunk and irresponsible when the deed was committed. He was formerly a railway fireman. Frederick says that his home is in Wilmington, N. C.

Two-Year-Old Child Kidnapped.

New York, Jan. 9.—Two-year-old Mary Mele disappeared from the home of her father, Nicholas Mele, a contractor on West Chester avenue. According to the father, Tillie Kaszasky, a maid employed at the Mele home, also is missing. The father fears that love for the child may have caused the maid to kidnap Mary, so he told the police.

Take the amount of kidney beans desired and soak overnight. In the morning place on stove and add fat salt pork, cut into rather small pieces, to taste. Salt. Let simmer until beans are soft. Serve hot. Succotash is also made from lima beans with corn added.

SOLD TWIGG DEADLY POISON

Orchard Manager Gives Clue in Poisoning Mystery.

POWER OF DRUG TO KILL

Declares He Sold Him Four Pounds 'For Spraying His Orchards—Coroner's Jury Renders Open Verdict.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 9.—The source from which the poison was obtained which ended the lives of Charles E. Twigg and Mary Grace Elosser on the eve of their wedding, while seated on a settee in the parlor of the Elosser home, Dec. 31, is believed to have been found.

J. C. McKown, of Paw Paw, W. Va., twenty-five miles east of Cumberland, declares that last summer he sold to Twigg four pounds of cyanide of potassium.

McKown is manager of the orchards of the Allegheny Orchard company, whose ramifications combine the most extensive peach orchards in this section of the country. McKown stated in the store of C. E. Wentling, at Paw Paw, that he had sold Twigg the poison, presumably for spraying in his own orchard. The poison was in a salts form, resembling small grains of starch.

In telling the assembled group in the Wentling store about the incident Mr. McKown said that after reading about the tragedy it occurred to him that he had sold Twigg cyanide of potassium, and on investigating his books he found the proof. Quite a number of men stood about McKown when he related the matter, including several commercial travelers.

Power of Poison.

McKown told how potential was the poison, saying that the minutest particle that might be held by a pin-head dropped on the tongue would produce death in three minutes. At the Robette boarding house, at Paw Paw, McKown also repeated his statement regarding the sale of the poison to Twigg.

McKown could not be found for more extended information upon the matter, but State's Attorney Robb said that he had been in possession of information that Twigg had obtained cyanide of potassium.

The coroner's jury rendered a verdict that Twigg and Miss Elosser died from cyanide poison administered by a person unknown to the jury.

STEAL 10,000 BAGS COFFEE

Cuban Coast Thieves Make Rich Haul From Wrecked Steamship.

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 9.—News received here from the neighborhood of Cape San Antonio, Cuba, is to the effect that there is much trouble with coast thieves and wreckers along that coast in connection with the cargo of the ill-fated steamship Crown Prince, which was lost in the October cyclones near that point.

The vessel had more than 60,000 bags of coffee on board, and of this amount 10,000 bags had been stolen when the Cuban coast guard reached the scene of the wrecked vessel. In that part of the country the coffee sells for 40 cents per pound, and the thieves made a rich haul. Some of the stolen cargo was recovered from the homes of the fishermen.

Man Who Secured $35,000 Worth Jewels "on Memorandum" Is Missing.

New York, Jan. 9.—Franklin P. Daniels, who formerly resided with his parents at 96 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, is missing.

Detectives from New York and other cities are seeking him on warrants issued there. His disappearance is mourned by many wholesale diamond, jewelry and silverware houses.

The dealers say that Daniels dropped into the Maiden Lane jewelry district about a year ago and that within six months obtained something like $35,000 worth of jewels "on memorandum" and for which they have not been reimbursed. Much of it has been traced to Manhattan and Brooklyn pawnshops.

TREATMENT OF SEED CORN.

Proper Methods, According to Washington Authority on the Cereal.

In farmers' bulletin No. 415, on "Seed Corn," C. P. Hartley, one of the corn experts of the United States department of agriculture, asserts that the same day seed corn is gathered the husked ears should be put in a dry place where there is free circulation of air and placed in such a manner that the ears do not touch each other. This is the only safe procedure. The writer has repeatedly seen good seed ruined because it was thought to be already dry enough when gathered and that the precaution mentioned above was unnecessary. Many farmers believe that their autumn is so dry that such care is superfluous. Seed corn in every locality gathered at ripening time will be benefited by drying as suggested. If left in the husk long after ripening it may sprout or mildew during warm, wet weather or become infested with weevils.

The vitality of seed is often reduced by leaving it in a sack or in a pile for even a day after gathering. During warm weather, with some moisture in the cobs and kernels, the ears heat or mildew in a remarkably short time. The best possible treatment immediately after gathering is shown in the illustration. Binder twine will support fifteen or twenty ears on a string arranged in the manner illustrated. Ordinarily the best place to hang these strings of ears is in an open shed or loft.

Permanent seed racks, with a separate compartment for each ear, are more convenient than the use of binder twine, and when they are located in a dry, breezy place the ears dry successfully.

Poultry Pointers.

Forcing the molt by starving the hens is not considered a good practice. Clean the coops thoroughly before you put them away. Get them under cover, too, if you can. They will last so much longer.

Two parts lard and one part turpentine will often cure "limberneck" in the afflicted bird if discovered in time and the remedy given promptly.

Ducks intended for breeding should be separated from those intended for market. It will be an advantage if they can have plenty of range and swimming water.

Cut hay into about one inch lengths and pour enough hot water on it nearly to cover. Allow it to stand overnight and feed in the morning. Feed about three times a week during winter.

Warm wheat for breakfast makes the Biddies shell out the eggs.

Fresh air is all right for the hens, but not when it is sifted through knot-holes and cracks between the boards.

Meat meal and beef scrap are rich in protein and mineral matter and especially desirable for molting hens and pullets kept for layers. Where insects are not abundant meat in some form should supply a portion of the ration of laying hens.

If the roosts in the henhouses are high the heavier birds are almost sure to suffer from bruised feet, commonly known as bumblefoot. This is caused by jumping from the roost to the hard floor.

Potato Chowder.

Cut a slice of salt pork in dice and fry until brown, adding a small onion sliced very thin. Don't let the onion brown, but put it in after the pork has started to cook. Have ready one or two medium sized potatoes sliced very thin and about a quart of hot water. Without removing fat scraps or onion put water and potatoes in the blazer and boil until potatoes are soft enough to mash with a fork. Mash a part of them, which slightly thickens the chowder. Add a cup of rich milk, season to taste and serve with biscuit. It may also be made with cold mashed potatoes, cold boiled potatoes and a cold boiled onion, and if desired add a lump of butter and omit the pork.

Beefsteak With Dressing.

Broil steak and season on a platter as usual. Make a dressing of bread crumbs with plenty of onion in it as for a stuffed fowl. Shape into little cakes, using an egg to help bind mixture, and brown in butter in a frying pan. Place these on the surface of the steak with a bit of parsley and serve.

There are no unsightly ash heaps on the farm of the man who knows their fertilizing value.

Tar on English Roads.

The county surveyors in England have reported that the tarring of roads has resulted in a saving of 20 to 25 per cent of the cost of the road maintenance. The average cost of spraying with tar is $195 per mile. Experienced men say that it pays to spend this much for tarring the roads that cost $750 to $1,000 per mile a year for maintenance. Nothing more satisfactory than tar has been found. Two methods are used in applying it. If the road is resurfaced the material is previously saturated with tar. On roads that are not used too much such treatment will last five or six years. The other system is to spread hot tar on the surface, and this has proved to be more than a dust protector. It makes the road waterproof and binds together the material, making it more resistant to water, wheels and hoofs.

A TRAMP PARTNERSHIP

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by Associated Literary Press.

One summer's day as a lone widow was driving an emigrant wagon along the dusty highways of Colfax county bound "for Kansas or bust" she was met by Deacon Pegram, farmer. He ascertained that she had a few hundred dollars in cash and knew little about agriculture or soils, and after inviting her to his home for a stay of a week he sold her the very poorest farm in all that country, noted for its fertile soil.

One sunny day in March as she stood at her gate a tramp came slowly up the road and paused before her. Things looked poverty poor to him, and he had no thought of asking for anything to eat. He looked at the widow, and she looked at him, and he presently said:

"If you were a man you could turn tramp and do better than farming. I passed here last summer, and I saw you were having a hard time of it."

"Did you stop on purpose to tell me that?" was queried in reply.

"Oh, no. I just felt like chinning a little. You didn't know much about land when you bought this, I guess."

"And what do you know about the land yourself?"

"Well, a little bit. Mebbe I wasn't always a tramp. This farm was being worked a hundred years ago. The soil is exhausted and dead. It wants bringing back. Here's a ten acre lot that would raise near a thousand bushels of taters if treated right."

"An' the tater bugs would eat up every vine as soon as it showed above the ground," replied the grouchy widow.

"Um! Um! Woman, let's talk. Let's talk business. Let's talk of a thousand bushels of taters."

They talked for an hour. The widow had been cozened once and was very chary, but the tramp talked straight, and she finally became interested. From that she came to believe. There must be some money raised for working capital. She mortgaged the team of old horses and agreed to board the tramp for his work and divide any profits with him in the fall. It was to be ten acres of potatoes and nothing else but a little garden truck.

beans and thistles, but as for potatoes, nix, so all the passing farmers said.

The potato bugs came along in due time. It was the seventh year. Some farmers had forgotten the date, while others had laid in a proper store of paris green. The tramp had said that none would be needed on the ten acres. Not a pound was bought. Dire disaster was predicted. The bugs were numerous. They swept over half the state, and they hit Colfax county worst of all. Farmers drew the green powder for ten miles, and their women and children sowed it on to the vines by daylight and by moonlight, but the bugs seemed to revel in it. No vine got six inches above the ground.

When the word went forth that the tramp farmer was not using a single ounce of preventive and that not a dozen bugs could be found in his big field there were callers in plenty. He was offered as high as $50 for his secret, but he smiled and kept on with his work. When he made any reply at all it was that luck happened to be with him. With a hoe in her hand, the widow worked beside him, finishing her row at the same time he did. Sometimes they talked as they worked; again they had nothing to say for half a day at a time. They had said it was to be a business partnership, and they stuck to it.

In time that ten acre field attracted more public attention than the new county courthouse. Potatoes were only 30 cents a bushel before the bugs came. Then they went to 50. When the first were fit for market they sold for 75 cents. When it was known that the state crop was a failure the price jumped to $1. Then one day a speculator came along and offered a price for the tubers in the ground. It was accepted. It was a greater sum than any farmer in the state had made from all his crops put together. The widow could lift the chattel mortgage on the horses, renew and repair and no longer scrape the bottom of the flour barrel.

There was an even divide of the money at the kitchen table. The tramp took the $50 and put it away and laid the balance on the widow's pile.

"Fifty will last me for a hundred years to come," he said.

"But you must take your half," was protested.

"You can be my banker till I come this way again. I just wanted to see if I had become entirely worthless to the world and myself, and as a student of agricultural chemistry I wanted to experiment with old Mother Earth once more. I've got the wand delisted strong on me again, and it's goodby."

The widow wanted to say many kind words to him, for he had been considerate, strong and industrious in every way reliable, but when she had prepared his supper and looked for him he was not to be found, nor did he come again with the passing years.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Covering the interior of a henhouse with paper to keep out the cold does not seem to be appreciated by the hens, as they employ their idle time in tearing it off with as much avidity as billygoats after a circus poster. Whitewash for interior and tap paper for exterior are far superior.

The Reading-New Jersey Central railroad's fast express, Queen of the Valley, en route to New York, was brought to a sudden stop near Bethlehem, Pa., while going a mile a minute. Passengers flew clear across the seats. An eight pound Plymouth Rock sucked under the train severed the air connection.

When hens have nothing to do in winter they often form themselves into a mutual admiration society and proceed to eat each other's beautiful garments. Hens that must sweat for all their oats don't steal each other's overcoats.

Two Millerton (Pa.) boys who tied firecrackers to pigeons and blew them into a mutual admiration society were fined $13 apiece. A hoodoo always haunts those that practice evil.

We have had orders from as far west as Oklahoma for ducks and on inquiry at the express office have been informed that all transportation for such distance must be prepaid. You may be able to get a shipment to a far point alive, but the long trip may be such a drain on their strength as to unfit them for future usefulness.

Sunshine is a germ destroyer and a better hen tonic than red pepper. For grouchy feeling it is fine, and you can bet it beats all "whines."

Very Curious.

Among the czar's possessions are some ancient coins which came to him in a curious manner. Some years ago a certain man dreamed three times that the spirit of the Czar Alexander III. appeared to him and told him that some coins which he owned and which had been procured from a wonder working minister had the power of shielding any one from all evil and begged the man to give them to Nicholas II. The old man was greatly impressed by his visions and at once sent the coins with an account of his dreams to the Russian ambassador at Vienna, who had them conveyed to Nicholas.

PROSPERITY IN FREE LIBRARIES

Every Town Should Be In Possession of One.

CONDITIONS OF CARNEGIE.

Why Some People Are Against the Acceptance of Libraries From the Steel King—Most Cities Now Have Libraries—Majority Given as Gifts.

There is no doubt that where there is a free circulating library there is an intelligent community. Every town, whether it has 400 or 10,000 population, should furnish some sort of center where the inhabitants can procure an insight into the labors of the mighty and know what is going on in the world to increase knowledge.

The great majority of cities of 25,000 inhabitants and upward in the United States, says a New York educator, have a public library of some sort, and the same is true of many of the smaller cities and towns. But there are still quite a number of towns that are minus them, towns that really need them. A few public spirited citizens could easily advocate a library or reading room and get the support of the rest of the community if not of the town itself.

Books will always be forthcoming either from the shelves of individual libraries or from contributions solicited through various means. The newspapers will always help their town to gain the financial support of the citizens.

Many of the libraries already established have been founded on gifts of individuals, some have developed from subscription libraries, but the majority are now supported mainly or entirely by funds appropriated by the city government. A considerable number are still in the formative stage, this being true of those for which buildings are being erected from funds provided by Mr. Carnegie and for several hundred others for which he will probably provide buildings.

The conditions upon which he provides funds for the erection of municipal library buildings are simple. The city must provide a site, which it may obtain by gift if it can, and it must agree to provide annually for the maintenance of the library a sum equal to at least 10 per cent of the cost of the building. Practically this offer is open to any city or town which has no public library building.

Some good citizens think that the city should provide its own building and not ask for it as a gift.

The people who have no taxable property and who therefore often erroneously suppose that they contribute nothing toward the payment of the taxes are usually quite willing to have a higher tax rate imposed for the purpose of securing for themselves and their families free library facilities, although in exceptional cases religious or sociological opinions may lead them to oppose it.

A considerable number of taxpayers are more or less reluctant to have their assessments increased for this purpose. They say:

First.—That they should not be taxed for things they do not want and never use.

Second.—That the furnishing free books tends to pauperize the community and to discourage the purchase of books for home use.

Third.—That there is no evidence that free public libraries improve the community materially or morally.

Fourth.—That the greater part of the books used are works of fiction, and that these are injurious to the readers.

Fifth.—That most of the arguments used in favor of free public libraries are merely sentimental and emotional, and that those who urge them most strongly do so for advertising and political reasons or to make a place for themselves or some of their relatives.

While it is difficult to trace to either specific instances of material or moral improvement, it is certain that a general diffusion of intelligence which both certainly effect does result beneficially in these directions. Communities with flourishing free schools and libraries are usually more prosperous and better than those without such facilities, and while there is doubtless room here for a confusion of cause and effect it is probable that there is both action and reaction. Prosperity calls for increased facilities for education, and these in turn tend to make the community more prosperous.

Perhaps nothing has been exploited to a greater extent than the King road drag, and perhaps there is no implement that is more generally neglected. Whether past experience shows that the road drag is not the useful and valuable implement its champions would have us believe or whether it is simply neglecting the use of a good thing is not apparent, but the result is the same. The roads need attention and they need it more frequently than they get it. If the road drag is not the thing then something else should be used. But use something.

HELPING ALONG THE RETAILER

He Gets Manufacturer's Aid In Fighting Mail Order Game.

SHOE TRADE FOR EXAMPLE.

Advertising of Brand by Maker Goes a Long Way to Introduce Goods Into New Territory—First Profits Smaller, but Business Is Built.

John Smith of Cresco, Ia., is in the shoe business. He is in competition with two other shoe stores in town and three general stores. He is also fighting for trade in competition with mail order houses in Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

When he puts in a stock of goods he finds that he cannot buy any cheaper than the stores already in the field. He can have shoes made with his own name on them which net him a profit on an average of 33 1-3 per cent per pair, but he is dealing with a value then which the people of his community know nothing about, and he realizes that it will be a hard pull to sell only those shoes which bear his own name and which have no identity as to value with the average consumer. He finds the other stores are established, doing a comfortable business. They are just as popular socially as he is, and he looks about for some aid to enable him to break into the shoe trade.

It is logical, then, that he should determine upon some advertised brand of shoes that is known to every family in his neighborhood, which has been advertised so effectively that the standard of value is fixed in the public's mind, so that when he hangs up his sign and puts his advertisement in the papers that he handles—shoes the people will immediately come to him because they recognize that he is marketing a well defined shoe value.

In a town like Cresco John Smith can generally get an exclusive agency. He can have a shoe that is not sold by any other store in his town—he can have a shoe that is not sold by mail order houses at all and that nets him on the average as good a profit as an unadvertised brand of shoes.

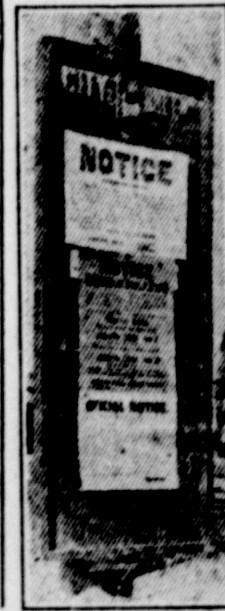

It is true that his initial profit on the advertised line of shoes may be smaller than the profit that is marked on the nonadvertised lines, but the advertised shoe seldom requires a clean-up sale or a cut price to move it, whereas this is the regular procedure with the nonadvertised shoe, so that the profit percentage margin per year is as good or better with the advertised line as it is with the nonadvertised. The dealer is able to sell a shoe that is known to every family in his neighborhood, which can't be sold by mail order houses and which is produced by a manufacturer constantly striving to give the dealer advertising helps and store co-operation so as to build up a constantly growing business.

The dealer gets from the manufacturer this friendly co-operation because the dealer is the sole representative of the line of goods in the dealer's neighborhood. The manufacturer desires to build the dealer's account as much as possible. He therefore supplies him with advertising matter, booklets, circulars, window ideas, and so on, and enables the dealer to be a live, progressive advertiser.—Printers' Ink.

disfigurement of ten created which will at times destroy the looks of a whole section.

What is there more unsightly than a large placard stuck up on a telegraph pole in a well kept street, perhaps in the town's finest residential section?

Since communities are or should be trying to overcome the unsightly decorating of fences, buildings and poles with all kinds of advertising matter it is necessary that the authorities find some other plan for posting such notices than the use of bulletin boards such as shown in the illustration.

Announcement has been made by an American of the completion of plans for founding an entirely new city in Lower California directly on the line of the new San Diego and Arizona railway, near the old town of Tia Juana and the international boundary.

The plans for the New Tia Juana call for well constructed streets, a modern hotel, a casino, a sunken garden, a theater, a Spanish bull ring, pavilions and other places of amusement, including a lecture hall, plunge baths and a library.

Fricassee of Fowl.

Take a fowl as plump and tender as you can get, clean it thoroughly and wash inside and out. Then cut up, taking pains to disjoint it properly; put into a kettle and nearly cover with cold water. Rub first with salt, pepper and a little sage. Bring to a boil, then set back, closely covered, where it will just simmer until it is done. When very tender remove the chicken from the broth, keeping hot. Skim off all the fat from the liquor and set it where it will boil up well. Season where, if needed, and add one pint of cream, if possible, or rich milk. Let come to a boil, then draw to back of the stove and stir in quickly the well beaten yolk of an egg and a tablespoon of chopped parsley. Have the chicken arranged upon a platter, leaving a hollow in the center. Take hot cream of tartar biscuits, split and lay in the hollow upon the platter and then pour the cream and egg gravy over chicken and biscuits and serve at once.
